U.S. Patent and Trademark Office
Acceptable Identification of Goods and Services Manual
(Revised January 1989)

This Manual was prepared by the Trademark Examining Operation of the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office for use by its trademark examining attorneys. It is reproduced and distributed as a membership service of The United States Trademark Association and replaces the version of this Manual distributed by USTA in September 1986.

The document is divided into two parts:

Part 1 - Acceptable Identification for Goods (Alphabetical)

Part 2 - Acceptable Identification for Services (Alphabetical)

All entries include both International and prior U.S. Classification designations.

A user guide serves as an introduction to the Manual and tips on preparing identifications, section 804 of the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure and the International and prior U.S. Classification Schedule appear as appendices.

The PTO has informed USTA that private sector comments on this revision of the Manual and/or suggestions for further improvements are welcome. They should be directed to:

Jessie N. Marshall
Petitions and Classification Attorney
Box 5, U.S. Patent and Trademark Office
Washington, DC 20231

Special thanks to Jessie Marshall for her involvement in preparing this material and for making it available to USTA.

USER GUIDE -- HOW TO USE THE ID MANUAL		(iii)
PART 1 -	IDENTIFICATIONS FOR GOODS (ALPHABETICAL)	3
PART 2 -	IDENTIFICATIONS FOR SERVICES (ALPHABETICAL)	127
APPENDIX A -	TIPS IN PREPARING IDENTIFICATIONS OF GOODS	178

APPENDIX C -	SCHEDULE OF INTERNATIONAL AND PRIOR U.S. CLASSES OF GOODS AND SERVICES	194

HOW TO USE THE PTO'S ACCEPTABLE ID MANUAL
(1989 Revision)

This Manual's listings are divided into two parts:

Part 1 - Alphabetical List of Goods

Part 2 - Alphabetical List of Services

While the identifications (ID's) shown in the Manual will, if utilized, enable trademark owners to avoid problems and questions of indefiniteness with respect to goods identified in their applications for registration, the particular ID selected must, for applications based on use in commerce, still be supported by the trademark owner's actual use of the mark. Moreover, examining attorneys of the Patent and Trademark Office may inquire (and often will inquire) as to whether the acceptable ID chhosen accurately describes the applicant's goods.

It should be kept in mind that no listing could include all possible identifications for the multitude of products and services for which marks may be registered. Thus a primary use of the Manual's listings, in addition to indicating precise identifications that will be accepted for registration for many items, will be to indicate by analogy and example the kinds of identifications that will be acceptable for products and services not fully covered by the listings which appear here.

Explanation of Format of Listings:

Each listing consists of the acceptable term, the International Class and the U.S. Class (or classes) in which the goods or services are classified.

(a) Material in parethenses indicates ID text which should be inserted in front of the alphabetized terms in framing an identification. Thus the listing for "chips (gaming equipment namely,)" on p. 27 would read, when transposed into identification form:

GAMING EQUIPMENT NAMELY, CHIPS

	INT.	U.S.
BLADES
(Surgical)	10	44
(Razor)	08	23
for hand saws	08	23
for power-operated saws	07	23

--There has been frequent cross-referencing of the same items, but only where a user of the ID Manual might logically look in more than one place for the correct identification of a given product or service. Thus hockey gloves are alphabetically referenced under both "gloves" and "hockey" and floppy disks for comptuers are referenced under "computers" "disks" and "floppy disks."

General policies and principles in determining acceptable identifications of goods/services may be found in the Trademark Manual of Examining Procedure (TMEP), Section 804, and the "Tips" sections which are found in Appendices A and B of this Manual. If, after consulting the ID Manual and TMEP, questions about suitable terminology remain, applicants and practitioners are encouraged to consult the Managing or Lead Attorney handling the particular class, or the Classification Attorney who can be reached at (703) 557-3268.

(5) The term "hardware" is unacceptable since it could refer to computers in Class 9, hand tools in Class 8, nails, bolts, or screws in Class 6.

(6) Use of the term "instruments" without proper qualifiers should be avoided since it could be in reference to musical instruments (not an acceptable term by itself) in Class 15 or dental instrumetns in Class 10.

(7) The term "kitchenware" is unacceptable since it could refer to items in more than one class, e.g., kitchen knives in Class 8 or butter dishes in Class 21.

(8) Use of the term "parts" should be avoided because parts for a particular product may fall in several classes.

* The foregoing examples of ambiguity and indefiniteness for identification purposes are not exhaustive. They should serve, however, to illustrate how other ocmmonly used terms with "double meanings" or multiple connotations are unacceptable without further delineation.

(5) The mere fact that a decision (or decisions) holds that a likelihood of confusion exists in relation to certain narrowly identified items does not necessarily mean that all broad identifications which would include such items must be amended to the specific narrow items mentioned in the decision or decisions.

(6) An identification which can be understood when read in association with the title of the class in which it is placed and is otherwise satisfactory, should not be required to be further qualified by amendment. (For example, "mufflers" in the clothing class would not require further modification to indicate that articles of clothing are intended; similarly the term "house organ" in the class for printed publications would not need further qualification.) See TMEP sections 1401.07 and 1401.08.

With broad identifications, as with any identification which includes more than one item, there is a question as to the amount of proof (normally by way of specimens) which is necessary to assure the Examining Attorney that the mark has been used on "all" the items in the application. See TMEP sections 808.01(a) and 804.06. It has never been the practice of the Office to require specimens showing use of the mark for every item in a particular class set forth in an application. Consideration is given to the fact that applicant has stated that the facts set forth in the application are true, and also to the degree of commercial relationship between the products. For a closely related group, a specimen showing use of the mark on one item of the group would be sufficient. As the closeness of the relationship becomes less certain, specimens of use on more than one item might be necessary to be persuasive of generalized use. The nature of the mark also may be considered, for it is so well known as not to require proof that "house" marks are in fact placed on all the goods which a company produces, whereas a "product" mark which is appropriate only for a specific commodity is used only on that commodity.

The appropriateness of any broad identification depends upon the facts in the particular case, but use of terms as broad as the circumstances justify is desirable. When an appropriate broad term is available, it should be used by applicant and accepted by the Examining Attorney.

Any uncertainty as to the acceptability of the terms in identifications should be first discussed with the appropriate Lead or Managing Attorney, and if unresolved, should be submitted for the decision of the Director of the Trademark Examining Operation, who may delegate the everyday responsibility for resolving these questions to the Classification Attorney who is responsible for classification matters. Generally, however, the Lead Attorneys are responsible for classification in their respective Law Offices and most questions can be directed to them. The Classification Attorney is also authorized to discuss with appropriate Lead or Managing Attorneys and Examining Attorneys situations which the Classification Attorney observes during review of the applications which have been forwarded for publication.

A limited list of terms which are acceptable identifications for goods has been compiled and is available to Examining Attorneys. This list is not meant to be inclusive of all possible acceptable identifications for any particular product. A list of terminology related to services has been compiled and is available to Examining Attorneys. However, this list is general and recitations of services must still be approved by the appropriate service mark Examining Attorneys.

Final refusals based on a requirement concerning identifications of goods or services must be reviewed by the Director of the Trademark Examining Operation so as to achieve the highest uniformity.

804.02(a) Identification of Publications in Connection With Title-Marks [R-6]

In the case of a mark applied as a title for a specific periodic publication, it is desirable for the purpose of citing references (see TMEP section 1205) to be able to ascertain, from the registration copy in the Search Library, the physical form of the goods and the subject matter to which the publication is directed. The specific physical nature and the literary subject matter of the goods should be incorporated in the identification clause (for example, magazine devoted to

804.03(b) Wording Not Usual for the United States

If the terminology in the international list is not in common usage in the United States, the equivalent term which is the normal language of this country should be used.

804.03(c) Procuring Copies of International Classification [R-6]

The English edition of the "International Classification of Goods and Services for the Purposes of the Registration of Marks" (4th ed., 1983) can be ordered from the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO), 34, chemin des Colombettes, 1211 Geneva 20 (Switzerland). The 1983 price is 90 Swiss francs. This publication is also available in the U.S. from UNIPUB, P.O. Box 433, Murray Hill Station, New York, N.Y. 10016. The price is $75.00.

804.04 Need For Greater Definiteness in Identifications of Goods and Services [R-5]

Whenever after applying the guidelines in TMEP sections 804.01, 804.02 and 804.03 as to broadness in identifying goods and services, the Examining Attorney considers it necessary to request a more definite identification, the Examining Attorney should explain clearly but concisely the reason for the request. See TMEP sections 1105.02 and 1105.02(a). Some well-recognized reasons for requesting a more definite identification are set out in the subsections of this section.

804.04(a) More Than One Class Involved [R-3]

If a broad term used by applicant clearly includes particular items which are classified in more than one class in the Classification of Goods and Services, the term must be amended to limit the items to one class. An example of such a term would be "artists' materials." Another example would be the designation "tables," which would include such diverse and differently classified types as operating tables, draftsmen's tables and dining tables. However, the conclusion that a term would clearly include particular items which are classified in more than one class should be reasonable in the light of commercial relationships between goods or services. For example, see the terms "paper," "furniture" and "ammunition," in In re Port Huron Sulphite & Paper Co., 120 USPQ 343 (TTAB 1959); In re Armstrong Cork Company, 180 USPQ 335 (TTAB 1973); and In re Dynamit Nobel AG, 169 USPQ 499 (TTAB 1974), respectively. In each of these cases the terms might seem to include certain items classified elsewhere but in fact such items are so specialized in character that they are not generally understood as being included in the broad term.

A filing fee is required for each class, and only goods classified in the designated class may be included. Rule 2.86 (37 CFR § 2.86).

For combining classes in one application, see Rule 2.87 (37 CFR § 2.87) and TMEP section 1113.

804.04(b) Lack of Clarity [R-3]

If a term is so vague or indefinite that what it is intended to identify cannot be understood, and proper examination is hindered, the term must be amended to be sufficiently clear. An example would be the term "metallic parts." An instance is also found in In re Societe des Parfums Schiaparelli, 122 USPQ 349 (TTAB 1959), where clarification of the term "beauty products" was held to be necessary because the term does not have a commonly understood meaning as referring to a known and commercially related group of items. In making inquiry, refer to Rule 2.61(b) (37 CFR § 2.61) and TMEP section 1105.02.

804.04(c) Inclusive Terminology

The terms "including," "comprising," "such as," "and the like," "and similar goods," and other indefinite terms, are not usually acceptable. Ex parte A. C. Gilbert Company, 99 USPQ 344 (Comr. Pats. 1953). Such terms may be used in explanatory phrases which follow a definite may find it necessary to make inquiries of the applicant in order to help ascertain the nature of the goods or services. The Examining Attorney may, if it appears necessary in order to facilitate examination, suggest improvements in the language of the identification, but suggestions should not be made unless the record provides unequivocal support for what is suggested.

804.07 Trademarks or Service Marks in Identifications [R-5]

If a trademark or a service mark is used in the identification of goods or services, whether the mark is owned by applicant or by someone else, the Examining Attorney should require that it be deleted and that generic wording be substituted. Because a trademark or a service mark indicates origin in only one party, and because a mark may be used for many different types of goods or services, it is inappropriate to use a trademark or a service mark to identify a kind of product or service. Camloc Fastener Corporation v. Grant, 119 USPQ 264 (TTAB 1958).

805 Designation of Class [R-5]

The number of the international class which is appropriate for the goods or services which are set out in an application should be designated in the application by applicant or applicant's attorney. The numbers, and also the names, of the international classes are listed in section 6.1 of the Trademark Rules of Practice. (37 CFR § 6.1.)

For further information on classification, see Chapter 1400.

805.01 Designation of Class Normally Accepted [R-5]

Although inexperienced persons who prosecute their own applications may not be familiar with classification, it is assumed that an attorney is usually knowledgeable both as to classification and as to the nature of the goods or services involved and has set forth a class number which he believes to be correct based on that knowledge. For this reason the class number designated by an attorney is normally accepted as correct in the Trademark Application Section, although inquiry may be made or amendment required during examination if the Examining Attorney considers it necessary. An obviously incorrect class designation may be changed in the Trademark Application Section. TMEP section 805.02.

term—for example, "fabric suitable for making coats, suits, and the like." The terms "namely" and "consisting of" are acceptable as being definite.

The term "accessories therefor" is normally not considered to be sufficiently definite, but "parts therefor" as related to machinery is acceptable when it follows a definite identification.

804.04(d) Inaccuracy [R-3]

If the identification is inconsistent with the goods or services which are indicated by the specimens, or if the ordinary meaning of the language of the identification designates goods or services which would be at variance with what is disclosed by the specimens or any other part of the record, amendment to make the identification accurate will be necessary. For example, "decalcomanias" are not adequately or accurately identified by the term "publications." In In re Toro Manufacturing Corporation, 174 USPQ 241 (TTAB 1972), where the goods were a specialized article known as "grass-catcher bags for lawn-mowers," such use did not justify the broad term "bags" which would encompass goods diverse from and commercially unrelated to applicant's specialized article. See also Merchandising Promotions v. Hastings & Co., Inc., 110 USPQ 256 (Comr. Pats. 1956); Kiekhaefer Corporation v. Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. etc., 111 USPQ 105 (CCPA 1956), "internal combustion engine" amended to "outboard motor;" Ex parte Consulting Engineer Publishing Co., 115 USPQ 240 (Comr. Pats. 1957), "periodical" amended to "monthly news bulletin;" Nopco Chemical Company v. Kay-Fries Chemicals, Inc., 124 USPQ 113 (TTAB 1960); and In re Samuel M. Gertman Co., Inc., 180 USPQ 336 (TTAB 1973), "fresh dressed poultry" amended to "frozen ready to eat poultry."

804.04(e) Marks Which Contain Names of Goods

If a mark contains in it the name of some commodity, consideration should be given to whether or not the identification should be limited to that commodity. For example, "beer" was not permitted in the identification where the mark was "Newark 'Olde Town' Ale" in Ex parte The Consumers Brewing Co., 55 USPQ 426 (Comr. Pats. 1942). However, under proper circumstances the identification would not necessarily have to be thus limited. For example, in In re The E. Kahn's Sons Company, 145 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1965), the mark was the composite wording "The Wiener the World Awaited," and the goods included the item bacon. It was found that the complete term when it appeared on packages of bacon indicated the source of the bacon despite the inclusion of the word "wiener" in the wording.

804.05 Goods Which Are Components or Ingredients

When it is clearly indicated by the specimens or other material in the record that the mark relates only to a distinguishable part or component of a composite product, or to an identifiable ingredient in a commodity, that component or ingredient should be precisely set forth in the application as the goods, so that there will be no doubt that the mark refers to only one part and not to the entire product. It is also desirable to indicate in addition what the product is of which the component or ingredient forms a part. In re Libbey-Owens-Ford Glass Company, 75 USPQ 202 (Comr. Pats. 1947); Mercantile Stores Company, Inc. v. The Joseph & Feiss Co., 112 USPQ 298 (Comr. Pats. 1957); Ex parte The Joseph & Feiss Company, 114 USPQ 463 (Comr. Pats. 1957); Ex parte Palm Beach Company, 114 USPQ 463 (Comr. Pats. 1957).

If it is not clear that the mark pertains solely to a component rather than the finished or composite product, the identification should not specify the component as the goods. Joseph & Feiss supra., Ex Parte Esquire Sportswear Co., 115 USPQ 359 (Comr. Pats. 1957).

804.06 Responsibility of the Examining Attorney as to Identifications [R-5]

It is the applicant's duty and prerogative to identify the goods or services. The Examining Attorney's function is, basically, merely to assure that the identification is clear and accurate and conforms to the requirements of the statute and the rules. The Examining Attorney medicine; educational bulletins; television programming newsletter).

In the case of printed matter of a specialized nature, the identification clause must identify the goods by specific names or wording explaining the specialized nature (for example, children's storybooks). Where the subject matter of the goods is clearly described in the mark, this information need not be included in the identification clause, unless the applicant wishes to further clarify the nature of the goods (for example, journal of forensic medicine). In the case of marks used by publishing houses on their books, a general identification, such as "books" is sufficient, unless the mark is restricted to certain types of literature, such as science fiction, romance or gothic stories, poetry, etc., where the applicant should specify the nature of the goods on which the mark is used. The applicant may also identify the channels of trade or the groups to whom the publications are distributed, if such information distinguishes its goods from those produced by others. On the other hand, if subject matter is not a significant aspect of the publication, the identification might then merely give an indication of the general character or type of the publication—for example, by use of a term such as trade magazine, employee newspaper, or the like. Also, other information which will appear in the registration copy may be considered. Registrant's name often contains wording which indicates the field or character of its business and when taken with the mark may provide sufficient information.

If the character of the publication can be adequately understood from the identification in association with other information which will appear in the registration copy, the Examining Attorney should not require that a broad identification be amended to include further detail. Judgment must be exercised in each case, in view of the particular facts, in order to decide how detailed an identification should be with the Examining Attorney keeping in mind both the necessity of having adequate information and the desirability of eliminating unnecessary correspondence and surplusage.

804.03 International Alphabetical List as Guide [R–6]

In furtherance of the guidelines set forth in TMEP sections 804.01 and 804.02, Examining Attorneys may refer to the Alphabetical List of Goods and Services which is contained in the volume entitled "International Classification of Goods and Services for the Purposes of the Registration of Marks," (4th ed., 1983), published by the World Intellectual Property Organization (WIPO). In view of the fact that the items in the present list were developed essentially as a basis for classifying goods and services and not from the viewpoint of proper form to serve as identifications of specific goods and services, most items will not be sufficiently definite to function as identifications of goods or services.

The primary purpose of using the international Alphabetical List as a reference for identifications is to provide a published source of names of goods and services to which applicants can resort to provide a framework for identifying their goods and services.

The principles for determining the degree of definiteness needed in identifications in order to permit proper examination (see TMEP sections 804.02 and 804.04) are to be applied to all terminology whether it is in the international Alphabetical List or not.

See In re Safeway Products Inc., 192 USPQ 155 (TTAB 1976); In re Air Products and Chemicals, Inc., 192 USPQ 84 (TTAB 1976), on reconsideration 192 USPQ 157 (TTAB 1976).

804.03(a) Terminology Not Limited to International List

It is not mandatory to use the terminology of the international list, and identifications which are otherwise satisfactory need not be amended merely to conform to the international list.

NOTE: Proposed amendments to the Rules of Practice which may become effective before the end of 1989 may significantly affect certain policies discussed below.

APPENDIX B

TRADEMARK MANUAL OF EXAMINING PROCEDURE (TMEP)

804 Identification of Goods and Services

804.01 Specifying the Goods or Services

The trademark statute requires the written application to "specify" the goods or services in connection with which the mark is used. 15 U.S.C. 1051(a). "Specify" means to mention or name in a specific or explicit manner. The identification of the goods or the services should be clear and concise, and as brief as possible, using common names current in the marketplace. For those products or services which may not have common names, language as succinct as possible should be devised. Technical language and lengthy descriptions of characteristics or uses are not appropriate. See Ex parte The A. C. Gilbert Company, 99 USPQ 344 (Comr. Pats. 1953); Ex parte Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator Company, 101 USPQ 293 (Comr. Pats. 1954); California Spray-Chemical Corporation v. Osmose Wood Preserving Co. of America, Inc., 102 USPQ 321 (Comr. Pats. 1954); In re Cordinal Laboratories, Inc., 149 USPQ 709 (TTAB 1966).

804.02 Broadness of Terms Used in Specifying Goods and Services [R-6]

When setting forth the goods or services in an application, the applicant frequently likes to choose broad terms by which to identify the goods or services. The basis of an application is use of the mark on the goods or services set out in the application. The requirement for use of the mark is not necessarily violated by broad terms, for when a mark is used on a number of items which make up a homogeneous group, a term which identifies the group as a whole would be understood as encompassing products of the same general type which are commercially related. As long as a broad term identifies with reasonable certainty what products are intended to be covered, it will be reasonable from a commercial viewpoint to consider that the mark has been used for all the related products which fall in the designated group. Using this approach, in In re Port Huron Sulphite & Paper Co., 120 USPQ 343 (TTAB 1959), the term "paper" was approved because of actual use of the mark on various types of papers; in In re Armstrong Cork Company, 180 USPQ 335 (TTAB 1973), "furniture" was not considered too broad to assume use as to all items normally covered by such term; and in In re Dynamit Nobel AG, 169 USPQ 499 (TTAB 1971), "ammunition" was permitted because its scope was assumed to be understood.

In considering all identifications, but especially the appropriateness of broad terms, the Examining Attorney must consider the following guidelines:

(1) A term which clearly includes particular items which are classified in more than one class is not acceptable. (For example, "artists' materials.")

(2) A term which is too indefinite to enable proper examination to be made would not be acceptable. (For example, "metallic parts.") In such a situation the Examining Attorney may seek further information under Rule 2.61(b) (37 CFR § 2.61(b)). See TMEP sections 1105.02 and 1105.02(a).

(3) An identification is unacceptable if it is inconsistent with the goods or services disclosed by the specimens, or if the ordinary meaning of the identification is at variance with the goods or services disclosed by the specimens or otherwise disclosed by the record. (For example, "decalcomanias" are not adequately identified by the term "publications." See also Ex parte Consulting Engineer Publishing Co., 115 USPQ 240 (Comr. Pats. 1957).)

(4) Wording included in a mark may require limitation of the identification. (For example, "beer" may not be included in the identification where the mark is "Newark 'Olde Town' Ale" (Ex parte The Consumers Brewing Co., 55 USPQ 426 (Comr. Pats. 1942). But see also TMEP section 804.04(e) for circumstances under which limitation would not be necessary.)

APPENDIX A

TIPS IN PREPARING IDENTIFICATION OF GOODS

* A determination of indefiniteness in relation to an identification of goods is frequently made because material information as to the exact nature of the goods is missing.

* Generally, the goods specified in an application for trademark registration must be identified by their common name, by other concise descriptive wording, or by a concise indication of the use and/or the field, or industry in which they are used.

* In ascertaining whether or not an identification of goods is indefinite and whether certain information about the goods must be specified, consideration must be given to the rule that identifications of goods are strictly construed in issues of likelihood of confusion. The Examining Attorney and the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board (TTAB) are bound in issues of likelihood of confusion by the identification of goods as set forth in an application or registration. This means that if broad identifications are set out, the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board will generally assume that the applicant/registrant is engaged in selling all types of products covered by that identification. Likewise, if a narrow identification is presented to the Trademark Trial and Appeal Board, the ID will be generally be construed narrowly.

* The following types of wording should generally be avoided.

(1) Use of the term "Including" in an identification is unacceptable for delineating or describing the specific goods covered. Instead, the term "namely" should be used. "Namely" limits the goods to the specific items listed, whereas "including" merely indicates a sampling of types of products covered.

(2) The term "accessories" is unacceptable since accessory goods may fall in more than one class and some of these may differ from the class of the principal product named. For example, dresses and accessories could include dresses in Class 25, jewelry in Class 14, and handbags in Class 18.

(3) The term "equipment" is unacceptable since it could refer to machines in Class 7, hand tools in Class 8, or electric devices in Class 9.

(4) The terms "etc.", "such as", and "the like" are unacceptable because they are open-ended and not limiting in nature.

The purposes of the word inversions indicated by parentheses is to permit placement of key ID terms (e.g. "chips" and "valves" in the above examples) where they would most naturally appear and be looked for in an alphabetical listing.

(b) Material in brackets has been provided for instructional or explanatory purposes. It is meant to provide guidance or indicate alternatives rather than to display exact or necessary ID text. Thus the reference on p. 26 to is meant to advise that an acceptable ID for chemicals used in manufacturing processes must specify the particular type of goods being manufactured. Similarly, the reference on p. 48 to "food beverages (chocolate) [not dairy based or vegetable based]" indicates that an identification reading for items in International Class 30 and U.S. Class 46 would be correct and acceptable. It is not necessary to use the bracketed material "dairy based or vegetable based" in the ID text.

> CHOCOLATE FOOD BEVERAGE.....30 46

On occasion, bracketed material is also used to identify a quality or feature of the goods or services that limits it to the classifications indicated. For example, in the listing:

> PROTECTIVE OR SAFETY HELMETS [NOT SPORT HELMETS]...09, 26&39

The bracketed text warns that while "protective or safety helmets" is an acceptable identification for International Class 9 and U.S. Classes 26 and 39 this is not so if the safety helmets are for sports use (in which case the proper classes would change to Intl. 28 and U.S. 22 respectively).

(c) Other format changes from earlier editions have been made to enhance ease and clarity of use:

> --Subtext and variations in ID text relating to key terms have been indented to facilitate location of the key items, e.g.,
